UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

BETTY DUKES, PATRICIA SURGESON, EDITH ARANA,
DEBORAH GUNTER and CHRISTINE KWAPNOSKI, on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

WAL-MART STORES, INC.,

Defendant.

Case No. C-01-2252-CRB

PLAINTIFFS' FOURTH
AMENDED COMPLAINT

[CLASS ACTION]

DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

Plaintiffs Betty Dukes, Patricia Surgeson, Edith Arana, Deborah Gunter and Christine Kwapnoski (“Plaintiffs”), on behalf of themselves and all others similarly situated, allege, upon personal knowledge as to themselves and upon information and belief as to other matters, as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. Over ten years ago, this action was commenced as a national class against Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., the largest retailer in the world and the largest private employer in the United States. The action alleged that female employees in Wal-Mart and Sam’s Club retail stores were discriminated against based on their gender, with respect to pay and promotion to management track positions, in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. §§ 2000e et seq.

2. In 2004, this Court certified a national class of female employees challenging retail store pay and management promotion policies and practices under Fed. R. Civ. Pro 23(b)(2). The United States Supreme Court reversed that class certification order on June 20, 2011. The high court, issuing new guidelines for class actions and Title VII employment discrimination cases, held that the national class could not be certified, based on the facts it outlined in its opinion. The Supreme Court did not rule on the merits of the action, but only ruled that the class as certified could not proceed. It did not preclude prosecution of a class that was consistent with its newly announced guidelines and standards.

3. Accordingly, this Fourth Amended Complaint alleges claims on behalf of a class of present and former female Wal-Mart retail store employees who have been subjected to gender discrimination as a result of specific policies and practices in Wal-Mart’s regions located in whole or in part in California (“California Regions”). Plaintiffs allege gender discrimination as follows:

a. Denial of equal pay for hourly retail store positions;

- b. Denial of equal pay for salaried management positions up to and including Co-Manager;
- c. Denial of equal opportunities for promotion to management track positions up to and including Co-Manager.

4. The class membership period commences on December 26, 1998, 300 days prior to the earliest class EEOC charge by a former class member. Based on evidence produced in discovery in this matter, interviews with class members and witnesses, and publicly available information, plaintiffs allege that the challenged practices, and therefore the class period, extends at least until June 2004, and, on information and belief, they allege that members of the class have been denied equal opportunities for promotion and equal pay through the present. With renewed discovery, plaintiffs will plead more specific time periods for each of the claims.

5. Plaintiffs allege that defendant maintained a pattern or practice of gender discrimination in compensation and promotion and that its compensation and promotion policies and practices had a disparate impact not justified by business necessity on its female employees whose claims arise in Wal-Mart's regions that include stores located in California. As used in this Fourth Amended Complaint, Wal-Mart's California Regions and California Districts refer to those Wal-Mart and Sam's Club regions and districts that encompass, in whole or in part, Wal-Mart's California retail stores.

6. This action seeks an end to Wal-Mart's discriminatory policies and practices in the California Regions, make whole relief for the class, and punitive damages.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

7. Plaintiffs' claims arise under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. §§ 2000e, et seq. This Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f), 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1343(a)(4). The Court has supplemental jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 1367 over claims under the California Fair Employment & Housing Act, Government Code § 12920, et. seq.

8. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(f) and 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) & (c). Named plaintiffs' claims arose in California. Many of the acts complained of occurred in this judicial district and gave rise to the claims alleged. Wal-Mart currently operates 212 Wal-Mart stores and Sam's Clubs in California where it employs more than 70,000 workers. It operates at least 20 stores in the Northern District of California.

PARTIES

9. Plaintiff Betty Dukes is an African-American woman and a resident of Contra Costa County, California. She is currently employed by Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. in Contra Costa County in Wal-Mart Store 1615, in Wal-Mart District 45, Region 19.

10. Plaintiff Patricia Surgeson is a woman and a resident of Sacramento County, California. She was employed in Solano County by Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. from August 1997 to March 2001 in Store 1704, in Wal-Mart District 42, Region 19. Plaintiffs are informed and believe she is eligible for rehire.

11. Plaintiff Christine Kwapnoski is a woman and a resident of Contra Costa County, California. She has been employed by Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. since 1986, and has worked for a Sam's Club in Concord, California since 1994. She continues to work at that Sam's Club at Store 6612, in Sam's Club District 63, Region 5.

12. Plaintiff Deborah Gunter is a woman and a resident of Riverside County, California. She was employed by Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. in California from April 1996 until August 1999. She worked in Store 2028 (District 10, Region 16), Store 1747 (District 205, Region 16) and Store 2077 (District 10, Region 16). Plaintiffs are informed and believe she is eligible for rehire.

13. Plaintiff Edith Arana is an African-American woman and a resident of Los Angeles County, California. She was employed by Wal-Mart in California from 1995 until October 2001. She worked in Store 2401, in Wal-Mart District 333, Region 16.

14. Defendant Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. is a Delaware corporation with stores throughout California. Its corporate headquarters is located in Bentonville, Arkansas. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.

operates retail stores doing business as Wal-Mart Discount Stores, Wal-Mart Supercenters and Sam's Clubs Stores (collectively "Wal-Mart") in California.

CLASS ALLEGATIONS

15. Plaintiffs bring this action pursuant to Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure on behalf of: a) all women who are currently employed or will be employed at any Wal-Mart retail store in a California Wal-Mart Region ("Injunctive Relief Class) and b) all women employed at any Wal-Mart retail store in a California Region at any time from December 26, 1998 ("Monetary Relief Class"), who have been or may be subject to the following policies and practices:

- i. Denial of equal pay for hourly retail store positions;
- ii. Denial of equal pay for salaried management positions up to and including Co-Manager; and
- iii. Denial of promotion to management track positions up to and including Co-Manager.

The proposed classes do not include Store Managers or licensed Pharmacists.

16. Plaintiffs are members of the classes they seek to represent.

17. The members of the classes are sufficiently numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Plaintiffs are informed and believe that the Injunctive Relief Class and the Monetary Relief Class each exceed 45,000 women.

18. There are questions of law and fact common to the classes and these questions predominate over individual questions. Such questions include, without limitation, whether defendant, through its California Region managers with final authority to make the challenged decisions, has engaged in a pattern or practice of discrimination in pay and management track promotions against its female employees in its California Regions, whether there are statistical patterns adverse to female employees in pay and management track promotions in defendant's California Regions, whether defendant's policies in its California Regions have an adverse impact

1 upon the classes and, if so, whether this impact can be justified by business necessity; and
 2 whether injunctive relief and punitive damage relief for the classes are warranted.

3 19. The claims alleged by the plaintiffs are typical of the claims of the classes. Each
 4 plaintiff has worked in Wal-Mart's California Regions and has been subjected to the 5 discriminatory policies and practices alleged.

6 20. The named plaintiffs will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests
 7 of the classes.

8 21. The Injunctive Relief Class is properly maintainable under Federal Rule of Civil 9 Procedure Rule 23(b)(2) because defendant has acted or refused to act on grounds generally 10 applicable to this class, thereby making appropriate final injunctive relief or corresponding 11 declarative relief with respect to this class as a whole.

12 22. The Monetary Relief Class is properly certified under Rule 23(b)(3) because 13 questions of law and fact common to the class predominate over any questions affecting only 14 individual members, and a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and 15 efficient adjudication of this case.

16 23. Alternatively, class-wide liability and punitive damages liability under the theories
 17 advanced in this action are properly certified under Rule 23(c)(4) for both classes because such 18 claims present only common issues, the resolution of which would advance the interests of the 19 parties in an efficient manner.

20 ORGANIZATIONAL AND STORE STRUCTURE WITHIN CALIFORNIA REGIONS

 22 24. Store Formats – Within the California Regions, Wal-Mart has operated in three 23 primary formats: Wal-Mart Discount Stores, Supercenters and Sam's Clubs. The basic 24 organizational structure for these stores has been the same across the California Regions.

25 25. Common Hourly Jobs Within Stores - All stores within the California Regions
 26 have used common job titles and job descriptions, and the same job hierarchies. Although the 27 Wal-Mart Stores and Sam's Clubs use somewhat different nomenclature, their personnel and 28

1 human resources policies, job titles and hierarchies, and compensation and promotion policies
2 have been virtually identical.

3 26. Most Common Positions - While there are numerous job titles at Wal-Mart, the 4 majority of hourly employees have worked as sales workers, cashiers, department managers and 5 stockers. The most common management position is assistant manager.

6 27. Common Department Structure - Stores within the California Regions have been 7 divided into numerous departments, which have been staffed by hourly paid employees. Some 8 departments have been designated as specialty departments. The departmental structure is the 9 same throughout the stores in the California Regions.

10 28. Common Management Jobs - With the exception of Support Manager,
11 management positions within the California Regions are salaried. Each store has Assistant
12 Managers. Larger stores have had one or more Co-Managers who supervise Assistant Managers
13 and other staff. All stores have Store Managers who are in charge of the store. Specialty
14 departments managers, who report to Store Managers, also report to District and Regional 15 Specialty Managers above the store level.

16 29. District Organization - Until 2006, stores within the California Regions were 17 grouped into districts which were supervised by District Managers and typically included six to 18 eight stores. Thereafter, districts have been expanded to include more stores.

19 30. District Managers' Role - District Managers within the California Regions have 20 been responsible for ensuring store compliance with company policies and culture. District
21 Managers have been based in their districts and spend their time visiting and monitoring the 22 stores in their districts and reviewing all facets of the store operations. District Managers also 23 have made or approved compensation and promotion decisions for the stores.

24 31. Regional Organization - Districts are grouped into regions, headed by a Regional 25 Vice President. As of 2003, each region contained approximately 80 - 85 stores. As of 2003,
26 there were two Wal-Mart regions (Regions 16 and 19) and two Sam's Club regions (Regions 1 27
28

1 and 5) that encompassed stores within California. These regions together included, as of 2003,
 2 over 20 districts. Most of these districts were comprised entirely of California stores.

3 32. Role of Regional Vice President – The Regional Vice Presidents in California
 4 Regions monitor and implement corporate and regional policies regarding compensation and
 5 promotion. Regional Vice Presidents regularly meet with District Managers and receive weekly
 6 reports from District Managers about the activities in the California Region stores they supervise.

7 33. Regional Personnel Managers' Role – Each California Region has had a Regional 8 Personnel Manager, who assists the California Regional Vice Presidents and District Managers in 9 making pay and promotion decisions for employees working in the California Region stores.

10 34. Changes to California Regions and Districts – Since 2003, Wal-Mart may have 11 adjusted the borders of these regions and districts.

12 35. Divisional Organization – The Regional Vice President reports to a Divisional
 13 Senior Vice President.

14 COMPENSATION DISCRIMINATION WITHIN CALIFORNIA REGIONS

15 36. Common Compensation Policies – Compensation of store-based employees has 16 been set based upon a common set of guidelines applied consistently throughout the California
 17 Regions and which establish basic standards for setting pay rates at hire and subsequent pay
 18 adjustments of hourly and salaried employees, hereby referred to as Pay Guidelines.

19 37. Hourly Job Categories - All hourly positions have been grouped into various job
 20 categories, which have been uniform across the various stores in the California Regions. All
 21 employees with the same job title, such as sales associates, are placed in the same job category
 22 regardless of the department they work in.

23 38. Job Category Pay Rates - The minimum pay levels at hire (“start rates”) for each
 24 job category have been established for each store in California Regions with the approval of the 25 District Managers and Regional Vice Presidents. Thereafter, an employee’s pay level may be 26 adjusted: 1) after an initial probationary period, 2) if the employee is promoted to a higher job
 27
 28

1 class or into management, 3) on an annual basis if the employee satisfies minimum performance
 2 standards, or 4) if the employee has been awarded a special “merit” raise.

3 39. Process for Setting Hourly Pay - The Store Manager has had the initial 4 responsibility to set pay rates for individual hourly employees within the pay guidelines, subject
 5 to a number of constraints set by the California District and Regional Managers. Where a Store
 6 Manager has set a pay rate above or below the guidelines, the rate is called an “exception.”

7 40. Hourly Pay Exceptions - The pay rate for a new employee may be set up to a
 8 maximum of $2 per hour above the start rate, but if the new employee’s rate is more than 6%
 9 above the established start rate for that pay class, a computer program in the payroll system
 10 prohibited payment at this rate unless and until the Store Manager manually enters the pay rate
 11 for that employee. A significant proportion of employees have been paid 6% or more above the 12 start rate in virtually every Wal-Mart store in the California Regions.

13 41. Approval of Exceptions - All hourly pay exceptions have been automatically
 14 reported to the District Manager who may approve or disapprove such exceptions. Regional 15 Personnel Managers have also been informed of all hourly pay exceptions and required to ensure 16 that hourly compensation is consistent among employees in the California Regions.

17 42. Hourly Pay Reports and Audits – California District Managers, Regional 18 Personnel Managers and Regional Vice Presidents regularly receive reports of all employees
 19 whose hourly pay in a job category is more than 10% below or 5 % above the average pay in that 20 class. California District Managers perform quarterly audits of each store’s compliance with 21 company policies, including compensation policies, which are reported to Regional Personnel
 22 Managers and Regional Vice Presidents.

23 43. California District Managers and Regional Vice Presidents have the ultimate 24 authority whether, and by how much, to adjust the pay of all hourly employees, including those 25 who are listed on exception reports.
 26
 27
 28

1 44. Salaried Pay Guidelines - Within California Regions, salaried employee
 2 compensation is required to be made in accordance with pay guidelines for each salaried position.
 3 These guidelines set broad pay ranges for each position.

4 45. Assistant Manager Salary – California District Managers, with the concurrence of 5 the Regional Vice Presidents and Regional Personnel Managers, set the compensation for 6 Assistant Managers in the California Regions.

7 46. Co-Manager Compensation – Within the California Regions, Co-Manager
 8 compensation is comprised of a base salary and profit sharing tied to the profitability of the Co-
 9 Manager's store. Regional Vice Presidents determine base salary and assign the stores at which 10 Co-Managers work, the profitability of which affects the profit-sharing component of the 11 compensation they receive.

12 47. Pay Decisions Not Job Related Or Documented - In each of California's Regions
 13 and Districts, Managers in California Regions are not required to use job related criteria such as 14 job performance or experience in setting, adjusting, or approving compensation for individual
 15 employees. California managers do not document the reason for setting, adjusting or approving
 16 the compensation of individual employees. The California Regional Vice Presidents and District
 17 Managers do not hold the managers in the California Regions accountable for the factors they use
 18 in making pay decisions or in ensuring those factors comport with the law, nor do they require
 19 any documentation of the reasons for the compensation paid to individual employees. Nor do
 20 Wal-Mart Managers specify the weight that should be accorded any requirement for setting or 21 adjusting compensation.

22 48. Patterns in Compensation - Women who hold salaried and hourly positions in the 23 California Regions have been regularly paid less on average than similarly-situated men, although 24 on average the women have more seniority and higher performance ratings than the men. This 25 gender pay difference adverse to women exists in each of the California Regions and Districts and 26 in the vast majority of the stores in the California Regions, even when nondiscriminatory
 27
 28

1 objective factors, such as seniority, performance, store location and other factors are taken into 2 account.

3 49. Management Knowledge of Compensation Discrimination - California Regional
4 Personnel Managers, Regional Vice Presidents and District Managers received regular reports
5 about compensation for hourly and salaried employees within California showing that female
6 employees were paid less than men on average.

7 50. Adverse Impact of Compensation System - Wal-Mart's compensation policies,
8 including its failure to require managers to base pay decisions for individual employees on job
9 related criteria such as experience or documented performance, have had an adverse impact upon 10 its female employees in the California Regions. Because reasons for compensation decisions are 11 not documented, elements of Wal-Mart's compensation decision-making are not capable of 12 separation for analysis.

13 PROMOTION DISCRIMINATION WITHIN CALIFORNIA REGIONS

14 51. Management Track Positions Below Assistant Manager Positions - Within 15 California Regions, Support Managers are the highest level hourly supervisory positions and 16 assume the duties of Assistant Managers in their absence. At Sam's Club, Salaried Area
17 Managers serve similar functions. Employees in these positions are often groomed for further 18 advancement. The vast majority of Support Manager and Area Manager vacancies have not been 19 posted. There has been no formal application process for selection for these positions or job
20 related criteria for making selections of those to be promoted.

21 52. Promotion to Management Trainee - Entry into the Management Trainee Program
22 is a requirement for advancement into Assistant Manager and other salaried management
23 positions. Prior to 2003, there was no application process or job posting for Management Trainee
24 positions. Hourly employees in the California Regions were not provided any information
25 regarding how to enter management, or what the requirements or qualifications were for entering 26 management, or how to apply for the Management Trainee Program.
27

1 53. Criteria for Promotion to Management Trainee – District Managers, assisted by 2 Regional Personnel Managers, select management trainees. Within California Regions, these 3 managers have been provided uniform guidelines setting minimal eligibility criteria for promotion
 4 into the Management Trainee Program, including minimum tenure, age (18 years or older),
 5 absence of current “active” discipline, satisfactory recent performance evaluation and willingness 6 to relocate, but no job related criteria have been provided for making selections among those who 7 meet the minimum criteria. Employees selected into the Management Training program are 8 required to transfer from their stores and often their districts as they enter training and Assistant
 9 Manager positions, subject to very limited exceptions which must be approved by the Regional 10 Personnel Manager and Regional Vice President.

11 54. Promotion to Co-Manager - Within California Regions, Regional Vice Presidents
 12 select Co-Managers subject to approval by the Divisional Senior Vice President. The majority of 13 Co-Manager promotions are transfers across district lines. Co-Manager openings have rarely
 14 been posted and there has been no formal application process for such positions. While there
 15 have been minimal eligibility requirements for promotion to co-manager such as satisfactory
 16 performance and willingness to relocate, there are no job related criteria for making selections
 17 among those who meet the minimum criteria or determining which store to assign to a co-18 manager.

19 55. In each of California’s Regions and Districts management track promotional 20 policies and practices have denied interested and qualified females equal access to promotional 21 opportunities because promotion opportunities are not posted, there is not an open application
 22 system, and employees are not informed of the criteria for promotion. Moreover, Managers in 23 California Regions do not require or use valid, job related factors in making the promotion
 24 selections within the California Regions. Nor does Wal-Mart specify the weight that should be 25 accorded any requirements for promotion. As a consequence, qualified women were denied equal 26 access to promotions because of their gender.

1 56. Management Trainee Registration of Interest - In January 2003, Wal-Mart
 2 instituted within the California Regions an online application process for entry into the 3 Management Training Program. In order to be considered as an applicant, employees were 4 required to agree to a set of conditions, many of which had the purpose and effect of discouraging
 5 women from seeking such positions. Potential applicants for entry level store management
 6 positions were required to accept the conditions that, as Assistant Managers, they would travel for 7 up to six weeks in duration, be subject to a varied and not regular schedule, including work on 8 scheduled days off, work during days, overnights, weekends and holidays, scheduled days off not
 9 consecutive and rotated weekly, and scheduled hours changed or increased without notice. None
 10 of these requirements is justified by business necessity, and it is untrue that Assistant Managers
 11 must normally travel up to six weeks. Failure to accept all of these conditions precluded
 12 consideration as an applicant, which has resulted in the exclusion of interested and qualified 13 women from the management training program.

14 57. No Documentation of Promotion Decisions - Managers have not documented, and 15 Wal-Mart had not tracked, the reason for selecting a particular employee for a management
 16 promotion. Managers have not documented, and Wal-Mart has not tracked, which employees 17 have been denied consideration for promotion because of their inability to comply with 18 relocation, travel or scheduling requirements for promotion.

19 58. External Statistics - Wal-Mart has had a significantly lower percentage of female
 20 managers in its California Regions compared to its largest competitors.

21 59. Internal Statistics on Promotion Rates - Female employees in California Regions
 22 and Districts, including the regions and districts in which each named plaintiff worked, have been
 23 much less likely than their male counterparts to receive promotion to management track positions
 24 including Support and Area Managers, Management Trainee and Assistant Manager, and Co-
 25 Manager positions, despite the fact that they possess equal or better qualifications than their male 26 counterparts.

1 60. Internal Statistics on Time to Promotion - Female employees must wait
 2 significantly longer to be promoted into management track positions than men with equal or 3 lesser qualifications. This is true in each of California's Regions and Districts, including the 4 Regions and Districts in which each named plaintiff worked.

5 61. Management Knowledge of Promotion Discrimination - Wal-Mart management
 6 has long known about gender disparities in promotion in the California Regions and have failed to 7 take any remedial action.

8 62. Reporting by Gender - Every store, district, and region in the California Regions
 9 regularly compiles and reports to corporate headquarters the gender composition of its hourly and 10 managerial workforce, employee turnover, exceptions to promotion policies, job posting data,
 11 entry into management training programs and other data. District Managers, Regional Personnel
 12 Managers and Regional Vice Presidents for the California Regions receive these reports.

13 63. People Division Reports - Wal-Mart's People division regularly prepares reports
 14 for senior management summarizing promotion and incumbency rates for store management
 15 positions by gender, and reports are regularly made to the Board of Directors.

16 64. Store Visits – District Managers, Regional Personnel Managers and Regional Vice 17 Presidents in the California Regions regularly visit stores and are aware of the gender 18 composition of the workforce.

19 65. Warnings About Discrimination - Senior management officials, senior People
 20 division officials, and outside consultants have warned Wal-Mart that women are not sufficiently 21 represented in management positions, that women are paid less than male employees in the same
 22 jobs, and that Wal-Mart lags behind its competitors in the promotion of women to management 23 positions.

24 66. Discriminatory Practices Identified - These officials and consultants have also 25 identified policies and practices at Wal-Mart that have an adverse impact on its female
 26 employees, including lack of consistent job posting, the requirement of relocation as a condition
 27 of entry into and promotion through management, reliance on stereotypes in making pay and 28

1 promotion decisions, lack of objective criteria for making promotion decisions, and lack of 2 consistent and reliable scheduling for management level employees.

3 67. Relocation Unnecessary - Wal-Mart's founder, Sam Walton, conceded in 1992
4 that Wal-Mart's policies, particularly its relocation requirement, were an unnecessary barrier to 5 female advancement, yet this policy remained in place thereafter.

6 68. Changes Blocked - Senior managers also blocked policy changes that would have
7 reduced the impact of Wal-Mart's discriminatory policies including posting of managerial 8 vacancies.

9 69. Failure to Analyze - Wal-Mart had never studied nor analyzed whether any of its 10 practices were consistent with business necessity or whether less discriminatory alternatives to 11 these policies and practices could be adopted.

12 70. Adverse Impact of Promotion Policies - Wal-Mart's promotion policies, including 13 its failure to require managers to base promotion decisions for individual employees on job
14 related criteria, have had a statistically significant adverse impact upon its female employees in 15 the California Regions. Because reasons for promotion decisions are not documented, and Wal-
16 Mart does not create or maintain records which identify the impact of separate components of its 17 promotion policies and practices, its promotion decision-making process is not capable of 18 separation for analysis.

19 WAL-MART MANAGERS RELY ON DISCRIMINATORY STEREOTYPES

20
21 71. In the absence of job-related compensation and promotion criteria, Wal-Mart's 22 managers rely on discriminatory stereotypes and biased views about women in making pay and 23 promotion decisions in the California Regions and Districts.

24 72. A 1998 survey of Wal-Mart managers revealed that there was a "good ol boy 25 philosophy" at Wal-Mart, that many managers were "close minded" about diversity in the 26 workplace, and that some District Managers "don't seem personally comfortable with women in 27 leadership roles."
28

1 73. A committee of Wal-Mart's few female executives, disbanded before this action
2 was filed, noted that, "stereotypes limit the opportunities offered to women."

3 74. All Wal-Mart Store Managers, including California Store Managers, have been 4 required to attend training programs at the company's Walton Institute. These managers were 5 advised at the Institute that the reason there are few senior female managers at Wal-Mart is 6 because men were "more aggressive in achieving those levels of responsibility" than women.
7 Managers were cautioned that efforts to promote women could lead to the selection of less
8 qualified women over more qualified men.

9 75. On January 24, 2004, at a meeting of all Wal-Mart's District Managers presided
10 over by Wal-Mart Stores' CEO Thomas Coughlin, the District Managers were told that they 11 were the key to running the stores: "[y]ou are the culture." The key to success was described as 12 "single focus to get the job done. . . .women tend to be better at information processing. Men are 13 better at focus single objective." The District Managers were instructed to create a "culture of 14 execution" and a "culture of results" as they picked "[f]uture leaders."

15 76. California Regional Vice President John Butler presumed that women did not seek 16 management positions because of their "family commitments."

17 77. John Scantlin, plaintiff Dukes' District Manager, concluded that women were 18 uninterested in management, basing his conclusion on his mother, a woman who had never 19 worked at Wal-Mart and, decades earlier, had not been interested in advancement.

20 78. California Sam's Club District Manager Terry Moran justified denying a woman a 21 promotion to an Assistant Manager position because of his concern that she had a small child. He 22 did not raise this concern with male candidates for Assistant Manager. He also explained higher 23 male pay rates as justified because they were the head of their households.

24 79. California Sam's Club District Manager Phil Goodwin justified paying less to a 25 female manager than a male employee on the ground that the male manager "supports his wife 26 and two kids."

1 80. Plaintiff Kwapnoski's Store Manager Alan Oshier justified giving a large raise to a
2 male employee because he had a family to support. He later suggested to plaintiff Kwapnoski
3 that she "doll up" and "blow the cobwebs off" her make-up to make herself more promotable.

4 81. Sam's Club El Monte Store Manager Jim Black told a female assistant manager
5 who had missed work due to a sick child, that the District Manager had said "this is why we are 6 concerned about promoting women with children."

7 82. Other California managers justified denying promotions to women or paying them
8 less than their male employees because of perceived family obligations of the women and male
9 responsibility to support their families or because of their presumed inability to relocate.

10 WAL-MART'S INEFFECTIVE ANTI-DISCRIMINATION EFFORTS

11 83. Prior to the filing of this action, Wal-Mart had no meaningful policies or practices
12 to hold managers accountable, financially or otherwise, to equal employment and diversity
13 policies and goals.

14 84. Starting in 2000, Wal-Mart asked District Managers to set diversity "goals" for 15 advancement of women in management. The goals were based on each manager's individual 16 views on what was attainable and were not tied to any objective measures of availability or 17 qualifications. Prior to 2004, failure to meet diversity goals had no financial or other 18 consequence for managers.

19 85. As late as 2003, Wal-Mart Stores' CEO Coughlin was not aware of any diversity
20 goals or whether managers had met such goals. Many Store Managers were also unaware of the 21 existence of any diversity goals.

22 86. Until at least 2003, there had never been any diversity goals set for individual 23 stores, or for any compensation practices.

ALLEGATIONS OF NAMED PLAINTIFFSBETTY DUKES

87. Betty Dukes is an African American woman currently employed in Wal-Mart store 1615, located in Pittsburg, California. She was hired as a part-time front-end cashier at the Pittsburg store in May 1994. Within one year after her hire date, Ms. Dukes received an excellent 90-day review, a promotion to full-time status and a merit pay raise. She was promoted to Customer Service Manager in June 1997, which also included an increase in salary.

88. In September 1997, Ms. Dukes began to experience harsh and discriminatory treatment from head Customer Service Manager Leilani (Lonnie) Barrett and male Store Manager Ken Cagle. In November 1997, she complained to male District Manager Chuck Salby about the discriminatory treatment.

89. After she complained, Ms. Dukes experienced retaliation from Wal-Mart store management, beginning with a disciplinary write-up on February 13, 1998, for returning late from her breaks, even though male and/or Caucasian employees returned late from their breaks or failed to clock out for breaks and were not disciplined. Ms. Dukes was also written up on March 31, 1998, for having a front-end cashier cover her lunch break, even though she had used this procedure many times before without incident and Caucasian employees used this procedure without being reprimanded. Ms. Dukes complained to male District Manager Jay King but he simply referred her back to the Store Manager.

90. On June 29, 1999, Ms. Dukes called in sick. Store Manager Cagle reacted in a highly negative and unprofessional way towards her request, even though she was entitled to use sick leave. Ms. Dukes called the district management office about Cagle and, ultimately, she spoke with the male Loss Prevention District Manager Charles Chibante. Only after she threatened to make a complaint to the Wal-Mart home office in Arkansas did she receive a reluctant apology from Store Manager Cagle. However, Cagle's apology only served to escalate the retaliation.

1 91. In July 1999, Ms. Dukes expressed interest in becoming a department manager by 2 requesting of Ken Cagle that she receive training for that position, but she was never given the
3 opportunity to be trained. Rather, shortly thereafter on August 14, 1999, Plaintiff was demoted
4 from Customer Service Manager to cashier and falsely accused of violating company policy while
5 performing a transaction that had been performed many times by Plaintiff and other employees
6 without incident. The demotion was Wal-Mart's retaliation for Plaintiff's numerous complaints
7 of discrimination.

8 92. On August 18, 1999, Ms. Dukes traveled to the Wal-Mart District Office in 9 Livermore, California and made a complaint to male Wal-Mart District Manager John Scantlin
10 about her demotion and her concerns about employment discrimination at the Pittsburg Wal-Mart
11 store. Wal-Mart took no steps to address Dukes' concerns.

12 93. As a result of the demotion, Plaintiff became ineligible for several promotions to 13 positions that she was qualified to perform from August 1999 to August 2000, the year following
14 the demotion. For example, a Support Manager position was filled in July or August 2000 by 15 Rosa Trevino (Hispanic female). Between July and September 2000, the position of Domestic 16 Department Manager was open and filled by Joseph Topasna (Filipino male). As a result of the 17 demotion, Ms. Dukes' hours and hourly wage were reduced.

18 94. After August 14, 2000, when Ms. Dukes once again became eligible for 19 promotion, at least four department manager and/or Support Manager positions at the Pittsburg
20 store were filled by men. None of these positions was posted. Between October and December
21 2000, Richard Morales (Hispanic male) was promoted from night receiving stocker to night
22 Support Manager. In November 2000, Joseph Topasna (Filipino male) was promoted to Support
23 Manager. Between October and December 2000 Robert (Aaron) Mendez (Hispanic male) was 24 promoted to Support Manager. In December 2000 or January 2001, Will Martines (Caucasian 25 male) filled the position of Department Manager for Tire Lube Express (TLE).

26 95. After the demotion, Ms. Dukes was discouraged from seeking other positions
27 because of the way she and other women had been treated by Wal-Mart. Dukes did not apply for 28

1 three department manager positions open after August 14, 2000 (Hardware, Over-The-Counter
2 Pharmacy and Stationery) because she was discouraged after the discriminatory treatment she and
3 other women received from Wal-Mart managers.

4 96. Furthermore, Ms. Dukes' knowledge of Wal-Mart's discriminatory practices
5 against other women at the Pittsburg store also discouraged her from seeking a promotion. In 6 June 2000, Brooke Terrell (African American female) was demoted from department manager to 7 a sales floor position, although she continued to fulfill the responsibilities of a department
8 manager until a replacement was found. The department manager position vacated by Terrell was 9 filled by Kevin Sims (African American male). In 2000, Trina Wallace (African American 10 female) was demoted from a department manager position to a sales floor position and later
11 terminated. The department manager position vacated by Wallace was ultimately filled by 12 Kendall Dimery (African American male). In 1999, Darla Harper (Caucasian woman) was 13 denied a department manager job in which she had expressed an interest. Without posting this 14 position, Wal-Mart selected Spencer Ostrom (Caucasian male) to fill this position.

15 97. On or about June 1, 2000, Dukes filed a charge of discrimination with the 16 California Department of Fair Employment & Housing (DFEH), a copy of which is attached
17 hereto as Exhibit 1 and incorporated by reference. On June 15, 2000, she received a right to sue 18 letter, and commenced this action in a timely manner.

19 98. On or about May 2, 2001, Dukes submitted a charge of discrimination to the 20 United States Equal Opportunity Commission (EEOC), a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 2
21 and incorporated by reference. She received a right to sue letter on or about May 22, 2001 and 22 commenced this action in a timely manner.

23 99. Plaintiff Dukes was at all times interested in advancing to a management position.
24 In January 2003, Wal-Mart began an online application process for Management Trainee
25 positions. She attempted to apply through this process but her attempted application was rejected 26 because she could not unconditionally agree to scheduling prerequisites.

1 100. Since July 2001, Plaintiff Dukes has worked as a Cashier/Greeter. In 2002, Wal-
2 Mart hired a male to be a greeter at her store at a higher pay rate than Ms. Dukes received after 3 nine years of employment. Another male employee who had been hired by Wal-Mart several 4 years after plaintiff Dukes, became a greeter in 1999 and was paid more than plaintiff Dukes.

5 101. On or about April 4, 2003, Dukes submitted a charge of discrimination to the
6 United States Equal Opportunity Commission (EEOC), a copy of which is attached as Exhibit 3
7 and incorporated by reference. She received a right to sue notice on or about July 31, 2003 and 8 commenced this action in a timely manner.

9 PATRICIA SURGESON

10 102. Patricia Surgeson was hired by Wal-Mart in Vacaville, California in August 1997
11 as a sales associate. She was assigned to the Tire and Lube Express department and, within two 12 weeks of her hire, was subjected to sexually harassing remarks and touching by a co-worker.
13 After reporting the harassment, she was transferred to the Health and Beauty Aids department.
14 She repeatedly applied to transfer to other positions but was denied.

15 103. In November 1998, Surgeson was assigned to the Lay-Away Department. In 16 approximately May 1999, she was made the Lay-Away Department manager. Because she was 17 assuming additional responsibilities, her Store Manager promised her a raise. Despite repeated
18 requests, Surgeson was never given the promised raise.

19 104. In late 1999, the Store Manager decided that the Lay-Away Department no longer
20 needed a manager. Ms. Surgeson's department manager title was taken away but she was 21 expected to continue performing manager responsibilities. When she left the department, a male
22 employee who was given the position and title of Lay-Away Department Manager replaced her.
23 He was paid more than Ms. Surgeson had been paid for working in the same position with the 24 same responsibilities.

25 105. In June or July 2000, Ms. Surgeson was moved to a position in the Cash Office.
26 Although she assumed greater responsibilities, she again did not receive a raise. She was 27 expected to work overtime without lunches or breaks, locked in the cash office. In her position,
28

1 she became aware that many male employees were being paid more than she was, although they
2 had worked at Wal-Mart for less time and had less responsibility.

3 106. In January 2001, she requested a merit increase. Her request was ignored for two 4 months.

5 107. Ms. Surgeson was interested in attending the Assistant Manager Training program
6 and in being promoted to Assistant Manager. She asked one of her managers for information 7 about how to qualify for the program, as she had not seen any information posted about such 8 opportunities. The manager refused to supply information, and provided only a vague response.

9 108. As a result of the discriminatory pay and working conditions, Ms. Surgeson
10 resigned in March 2001.

11 109. On or about May 14, 2001, Surgeson filed a charge of discrimination with the 12 EEOC, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit 4 and incorporated by reference. The EEOC
13 issued a notice of right to sue on May 31, 2001, and this action was timely commenced thereafter.

14 CHRISTINE KWAPNOSKI

15 110. Christine Kwapnoski was hired by Wal-Mart in 1986, and was originally assigned 16 to a Sam's Club in Missouri. Ms. Kwapnoski worked as a cashier in the cash office and in 17 claims.

18 111. While at the Sam's Club in Missouri, Ms. Kwapnoski was sent to help open a new 19 Sam's Club in Concord, California. Ms. Kwapnoski was encouraged to transfer permanently to 20 the Concord store. Both her abilities and her work ethic were praised.

21 112. In 1994, Ms. Kwapnoski transferred to the Sam's Club in Concord, California.
22 She worked in auditing, freezer departments, claims, and in receiving. She repeatedly made it
23 known to the general managers at the Sam's Club and to the District Operations Manager that she 24 sought promotion to a team leader position and an area manager position. These jobs were not 25 posted to permit formal applications. Instead, these positions, as they became open, were 26 repeatedly given to men who were less qualified than Ms. Kwapnoski. Ms. Kwapnoski was 27 required to train several of these men in order for them to assume the responsibilities of the 28

1 position. Ms. Kwapnoski also observed men receiving higher rates of pay and more frequent
2 increases in their pay rates.

3 113. Ms. Kwapnoski requested upon more than one occasion the opportunity to join the 4 “Management-in-Training” program, but was denied this opportunity. In 1999, she was finally 5 made a team leader, an hourly position. In June 2001, shortly after this action was filed, Ms.
6 Kwapnoski was promoted to a receiving area coach/manager position. After that promotion, Ms.
7 Kwapnoski was told that she had to be a receiving area manager for at least one year before she
8 could be considered for the “Management-in-Training” program. Men were not required to meet 9 this same requirement.

10 114. After a year as receiving area manager, Ms. Kwapnoski asked her store manager
11 when she could enter the “Management-in-Training” program. She was told that she should 12 continue what she was doing and that she should move to the Front End to get experience in that 13 area of the store. Men were not required to have this breadth of experience before entering the 14 “Management-in-Training” program.

15 115. Ms. Kwapnoski filed a Charge of Discrimination with the EEOC on or about 16 February 15, 2002, a copy of which is attached hereto as exhibit 5 and incorporated by reference.
17 She received a right to sue notice in March 2002.

18 116. Ms. Kwapnoski continued to request entry into the “Management-in-Training”
19 program but was repeatedly denied. In 2002, she was told that she had to relocate in order to join
20 the program, a requirement she had never been told about before. Although Ms. Kwapnoski
21 could have relocated in prior years, she was unable to relocate at that time. She was told by her
22 store manager that because she could not relocate she could not join the program. Finally, in 23 January 2003, Ms. Kwapnoski entered the program, one year after filing the charge against Sam’s
24 Club and after becoming a Plaintiff in this lawsuit.

25 117. Starting with her annual review for 2002, Ms. Kwapnoski began receiving annual 26 reviews which stated that her performance was “below expectations.” She had never received
27
28

1 such low scores before she joined the lawsuit as a named plaintiff. As a result of these low
2 scores, she did not receive an annual raise until 2010.

3 118. Upon completion of the “Management-in-Training” program in mid-2003, Ms.
4 Kwapnoski was promoted to Bakery Manager, which is an Assistant Manager position. Ms.
5 Kwapnoski remains as an Assistant Manager.

6 119. In late March/April 2004, Wal-Mart began an investigation against Ms.
7 Kwapnoski for alleged sexual harassment of a co-worker. After an investigation, the charges
8 were dropped for having no merit.

9 120. Ms. Kwapnoski filed a Charge of Retaliation with the EEOC on or about 10 April 23, 2005, a copy of which is attached hereto as exhibit 6 and incorporated by reference.
11 She received a right to sue notice in May 2005 which was tolled by mutual agreement of the 12 parties to this litigation. This action was instituted timely thereafter.

13 121. In 2008, Ms. Kwapnoski was disciplined for allegedly violating code-date policies.
14 Upon receiving the discipline, Ms. Kwapnoski took photographs of the items that were 15 supposedly out-of-date, proving that these items were, in fact, current and that the discipline was 16 unwarranted.

17 122. Twice in 2009, Sam’s Club management opened a “Red Book” on Ms. Kwapnoski
18 alleging serious charges against her that, if proven, would lead to her termination. Both “Red 19 Books” eventually were closed as no evidence was found to support either.

20 123. In July 2011, Ms. Kwapnoski was scheduled to work eight straight days even 21 though managers are normally scheduled for no more than six days in a row. Ms. Kwapnoski
22 complained to her store manager about the scheduling but he refused to change it. The following
23 month, August 2011, the store manager scheduled her for 11 straight days of work. Upon 24 complaining again to her manager and then the regional manager of human resources, Ms.
25 Kwapnoski was given one day off in that 11-day span. In October 2011, Ms. Kwapnoski was 26 again scheduled to work 10 days in a row. She again complained to her manager. Other 27 managers are routinely not scheduled to work more than six days in a row. In addition, Ms.
28

1 Kwapnoski has been scheduled to work every weekend for three months. Other managers are 2 routinely given weekends, or partial weekends, off.

3 124. Ms. Kwapnoski filed a second Charge of Retaliation with the EEOC on or about
4 October 19, 2011, a copy of which is attached hereto as exhibit 7 and incorporated by reference.
5 She has requested a right to sue notice.

6 125. Despite being an Assistant Manager for eight years, Ms. Kwapnoski is at the 7 bottom range in salary for Assistant Managers in her region.

9 DEBORAH GUNTER

10 126. Deborah Gunter was hired in April 1996 as a Photo Lab Clerk in Wal-Mart Store
11 2028 in Riverside, California. She had 30 years of prior retail experience.

12 127. While employed at Store 2028, Ms. Gunter sought promotion several times to the 13 position of Pets Department Manager between the time she began her employment in 1996 and 14 approximately March 1998. Though none of the positions were posted, Ms. Gunter advised her 15 supervisor that she was interested in them once she became aware that they were available. Ms.
16 Gunter was particularly interested in this position because of her extensive experience breeding
17 and raising show dogs. She never received the promotion, although the store Night Manager
18 recommended her for the position. The first time Ms. Gunter sought advancement into this 19 position, a male employee with less experience was given the position. The second time she 20 sought advancement into this position, a male employee with less experience was given the 21 position.

22 128. In the fall of 1996, Ms. Gunter was transferred to the position of Night Stocker.
23 While employed as a Night Stocker, Ms. Gunter learned that the male employees in the Receiving 24 Department earned a higher wage than the female employees in the department.

25 129. In March 1998, Ms. Gunter transferred to a position as Service Clerk in the Tire
26 Lube Express Department of Store #1747 in Perris, California after the Perris Store Manager
27 requested that she transfer there. While employed at the Perris store from March 1998 until 28

1 March 1999, Ms. Gunter performed the duties of Support Manager to the Tire Lube Express
 2 Department without the title or salary for that position. Ms. Gunter requested training from the 3 Tire Lube Express Manager and from the District Manager on numerous occasions. She never 4 received the training. Ms. Gunter requested a promotion and pay increase from the Tire Lube
 5 Express Manager, but did not receive the promotion. Instead the Tire Lube Express Manager
 6 directed her to train two male employees in the job responsibilities of the Support Manager. After 7 receiving training from Ms. Gunter, each male employee was promoted instead of her to the 8 Support Manager position. After the Tire Lube Express Manager told her she did not have 9 sufficient training to fill the position of Support Manager (despite having trained two males
 10 eventually promoted), Ms. Gunter again requested additional training and was denied it.

11 130. Beginning in the summer of 1998, Ms. Gunter was subjected to sexually harassing
 12 remarks by the Tire Lube Express Manager. She complained to the Store Manager in December
 13 1998 and January 1999. However, corrective action was not taken and Ms. Gunter's complaints
 14 were ignored. Subsequently, her hours were reduced.

15 131. Ms. Gunter transferred to Store 2077 in Lake Elsinore, California in March 1999
 16 with the belief that she would get more hours. At the Lake Elsinore store, Ms. Gunter was 17 employed as a Cashier/Clerk in the Tire Lube Express Department. As she had done in the Perris
 18 store, she trained a male employee in the job responsibilities of Support Manager for the Tire
 19 Lube Express Department. After she trained him, the male employee was promoted to Support
 20 Manager, whereas Ms. Gunter's hours were reduced yet again.

21 132. Ms. Gunter complained to the Lake Elsinore Tire Lube Express Manager after her
 22 hours were reduced. She also requested a meeting with the District Manager to complain about 23 the discriminatory treatment. In August 1999, on the day that the meeting was scheduled, the 24 Store Manager informed her that she had been terminated and handed Gunter her remaining 25 wages and vacation pay.
 26
 27
 28

1 133. Ms. Gunter filed a Charge of Discrimination with the EEOC on or about
2 October 20, 2011, a copy of which is attached hereto as exhibit 8 and incorporated by reference.
3 She has requested a right to sue notice.

4 EDITH ARANA

5 134. Edith Arana is an African-American woman who was hired by Wal-Mart Store
6 2401 in Duarte, California, on September 5, 1995. During her employment, she held the 7 positions of Personnel Manager, Support Manager, Sales Associate, UPC clerk, Test Scanner and 8 Inventory Clerk. Prior to working at Wal-Mart, Ms. Arana had nine years of retail experience. In 9 December 1997, Ms. Arana told the Store Manager that she wanted to apply for the assistant
10 manager-training program. He informed Ms. Arana that he would recommend her to the District
11 Manager for the training program. However, he did not give Ms. Arana's name to the District 12 Manager. The Store Manager then said he would recommend Ms. Arana the next time the 13 District Manager asked for names for the training program. However, to her knowledge, he never 14 submitted her name.

15 135. In October 1999, Ms. Arana applied for the position of Paper Goods and 16 Chemicals Department Manager. Although Ms. Arana understood that Wal-Mart's policy is to 17 interview every applicant, she was not interviewed. A male employee was selected to fill the 18 position. During this same 1999-2000 period, Ms. Arana was denied promotion to several other
19 positions, including to department manager positions in Ladies Sportswear and Stationary
20 Departments. Ms. Arana applied a second time for the position of Paper Goods and Chemicals
21 Department Manager between January and August 2000. She was not interviewed, and a male 22 employee was selected to fill the position.

23 136. In approximately June 2000, Ms. Arana told the new Store Manager that she 24 wanted to be promoted and that she was interested in the assistant manager-training program.
25 The Store Manager gave only a vague response. On another occasion, the Store Manager told her
26 that there was no place for people like her in the program and confirmed that he was referencing
27 that there was no place for people like her in the program and confirmed that he was referencing
28

1 her gender and race. Ms. Arana is not aware of any woman recommended by that Store Manager
2 for the assistant manager-training program.

3 137. During the months after Ms. Arana told the Store Manager that she wanted to 4 apply for the assistant manager-training program, she also informed various Assistant Store
5 Managers of her desire for a promotion. Ms. Arana also complained to several Assistant
6 Managers about the Store Manager's discriminatory treatment of her. Ms. Arana also wrote a
7 letter to an Assistant Manager expressing her desire to join the assistant manager-training
8 program. That Assistant Manager suggested to Ms. Arana that she write a letter directly to the 9 District Manager.

10 138. In December 2000, Ms. Arana wrote a letter to the District Manager expressing her 11 interest in the assistant manager-training program. The District Manager replied via letter that 12 Ms. Arana's letter would be forwarded to the new District Manager. Despite her repeated 13 expressions of interest in the assistant manager-training program, Ms. Arana was never 14 considered for that program.

15 139. In January 2001, Ms. Arana called Wal-Mart's toll free number to complain about 16 the Store Manager's discriminatory refusal to interview women who applied for department
17 manager positions in certain departments. Ms. Arana was informed that her complaint would be 18 forwarded to the Regional Manager. However, to Ms. Arana's knowledge, no steps were taken in 19 response to her complaint.

20 140. After Ms. Arana complained about the Store Manager's discriminatory treatment,
21 she was transferred in February 2001 to the less desirable position of inventory traveler. Ms.
22 Arana repeatedly told the Store Manager and two Assistant Managers that she did not want to be 23 an inventory traveler because it was not a desirable position.

24 141. On October 19, 2001, Ms. Arana was falsely accused of "stealing time" and 25 terminated in retaliation for her complaints regarding Wal-Mart's discriminatory failure to 26 promote women.

147. The foregoing conduct violates Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Wal-Mart has engaged in a pattern or practice of discriminating against its female employees in making compensation and management track promotion decisions in its California Regions.

148. Wal-Mart has maintained a system for making decisions about compensation and promotions that has had an adverse impact on its female employees in its California Regions. Its compensation policies for setting and adjusting pay collectively and individually, including its failure to require or use job related criteria for making compensation decisions, has had an adverse impact on women. Its management track promotion policies: the absence of an open application process and job posting its relocation and travel requirements for management positions, its scheduling requirements which deny managers a consistent schedule, and its failure to apply job-related objective criteria for making management selections have all individually and collectively caused this adverse impact on female employees in promotions.

149. Wal-Mart has failed in California to create or maintain the data that would allow analysis of the impact of each of these policies and practices individually. Nor does Wal-Mart specify the weight that should be according to each of the requirements for pay and promotion. Wal-Mart's pay and promotion policies and procedures are thus not capable of separation for analysis, and accordingly the entire decision-making process for compensation and promotions decisions may each be analyzed as one employment practice. 42 U.S.C. 2000e-2(k)(1)(B)(i).

150. Wal-Mart's compensation and promotion policies are not job related or consistent with business necessity. Wal-Mart's own consultants and human resources staff have proposed job posting, elimination of relocation requirements, adoption of more consistent and reliable scheduling, and the use of more objective criteria for management promotions. Adopting these policies would have resulted in less discriminatory impact upon female employees while serving Wal-Mart's business needs more effectively than its current practices.

151. Wal-Mart's discriminatory practices described above have denied female employees promotional opportunities and compensation to which they are entitled, which has resulted in the loss of past and future wages and other job benefits.

152. Plaintiffs request relief as provided in the Prayer for Relief below.

SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Violation of Title VII)

153. Paragraphs 88-102, 111-126 and 135-142 are incorporated by reference. This claim is brought on behalf of the Named Plaintiffs individually for their non-class claims.

154. Defendant discriminated against the Named Plaintiffs on the basis of their gender and in retaliation by demoting them, reducing hours, failing to increase pay, and otherwise adversely affecting the conditions of their employment and terminating them and by subjecting them to a hostile work environment.

155. Defendant's discriminatory and retaliatory practices have resulted in the loss of past and future wages and other job benefits, and have caused plaintiffs to suffer humiliation, embarrassment and emotional distress.

156. Plaintiffs request relief as provided in the Prayer for Relief below.

THIRD CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Violation of California Fair Employment and Housing Act -Race Discrimination)

157. Plaintiffs incorporate by reference Paragraphs 88-102.

158. This claim for relief is brought on behalf of Plaintiff Dukes only.

159. Defendant discriminated against plaintiff Dukes on the basis of her race African American. The foregoing conduct violates the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code §§ 12940, et. seq.

160. Defendant's discriminatory and retaliatory practices have resulted in the loss of past and future wages and other job benefits, and have caused plaintiff Dukes to suffer humiliation, embarrassment and emotional distress.

161. Plaintiff Dukes requests relief as provided in the Prayer for Relief below.

RELIEF ALLEGATIONS

162. Plaintiffs and the Injunctive Relief Class they represent have no plain, adequate or complete remedy at law to redress the wrongs alleged herein, and the injunctive relief sought in this action is the only means of securing complete and adequate relief. Plaintiffs and the Injunctive Relief Class they represent are now suffering and will continue to suffer irreparable injury from Defendant's discriminatory acts and omissions.

163. The actions on the part of Defendant have caused and continue to cause Plaintiffs and all Monetary Relief class members substantial losses in earnings, promotional opportunities and other employment benefits, in an amount to be determined according to proof.

164. Defendant acted or failed to act as herein alleged with malice or reckless indifference to the protected rights of Plaintiffs' and Monetary Relief class members. Plaintiffs and class members are thus entitled to recover punitive damages in an amount to be determined according to proof.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs and the proposed classes pray for relief as follows:

- 1) Certification of the Injunctive Relief and Monetary Relief Classes as class actions under Rule 23 (b)(2) and (3), and designation of the Named Plaintiffs Dukes and Kwapnoski as representatives of the Injunctive Relief class and all Named Plaintiffs as representatives of the Monetary Relief class and their counsel of record as Class Counsel for both classes;
- 2) All damages which the Named Plaintiffs and the Monetary Relief Class have sustained as a result of Defendant's conduct, including back pay, front pay, general and special damages for lost compensation and job benefits that they would have received but for the discriminatory practices of Defendant;
- 3) For Plaintiffs' individual, non-class claims, all damages they have sustained as a result of defendant's conduct, including back pay, front pay, general and specific damages for lost

1 compensation and job benefits they would have received but for the discriminatory practices of 2 defendant, damages for emotional distress, and punitive damages, according to proof;

3 4) For plaintiffs and the Monetary Relief Class exemplary and punitive damages in 4 an amount commensurate with Defendant's ability to pay and to deter future conduct;

5 5) A preliminary and permanent injunction against Defendant and its directors,
 6 officers, owners, agents, successors, employees and representatives, and any and all persons
 7 acting in concert with them, from engaging in each of the unlawful practices, policies, customs
 8 and usages set forth herein. Such relief at minimum should include professional designed job 9 analyses of all job positions and identification of objective, nondiscriminatory criteria for 10 compensation and promotion decisions, record keeping that requires documentation of 11 compensation and promotion decisions, open application and job posting procedures for 12 promotion, training and accountability measures to ensure consistent, nondiscriminatory
 13 decision-making, adjustment of the wage rates and benefits for Plaintiffs and the Injunctive Relief
 14 Class to that level which Plaintiffs and the Injunctive Relief Class would be enjoying but for 15 Defendant's discriminatory practices, and affirmative action to provide lost promotion
 16 opportunities to Plaintiffs and Injunctive Relief class members.

17 6) A declaratory judgment that the practices complained of in this Fourth Amended
 18 Complaint are unlawful and violate 42 U.S.C. § 2000(e), et. seq., Title VII of the Civil Rights Act
 19 of 1964;

20 7) Costs incurred, including reasonable attorneys' fees, to the extent allowable by 21 law;

22 8) Pre-Judgment and Post-Judgment interest, as provided by law; and 23
 24
 25
 26
 27
 28

1 9) Such other and further legal and equitable relief as this Court deems necessary,
2 just and proper.

pected to perform the job responsibilities. When I left this department in June or July 2000, a male employee, B.J.Jawanda, was given the position and title of Layaway Department Manager. He was paid more than I had been for working in the same position with the same responsibilities.

In June or July 2000, I was moved to the position of Cash Office. Although I assumed greater responsibilities, I did not receive a raise. I was expected to work overtime without lunches or breaks, locked in the cash office. In my position, I became aware that many male employees were being paid more than I was, although they had worked at Wal-Mart for less time and they had less responsibility. In January 2001, I asked in writing for a merit increase. My request was ignored for at least two months.

As a result of my unfair pay and the working conditions, I resigned on March 17, 2001.

I bring this charge on behalf of myself and similarly situated women who I believe receive less pay, promotions and training than male employees.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

EEOC CHARGE # 376-2005-00571

Attachment to Charge of Discrimination Form

I, CHRISTINE KWAPNOSKI, am a white female. I was hired by Sam's Club originally in Missouri, in 1986. I was transferred to Sam's Club in Concord, California in 1994, and have been continuously employed there since that date. I believe that I have been retaliated against for complaining about sex discrimination.

On February 7, 2002, I filed a complaint with the EEOC Oakland Local Office stating that Sam's Club discriminated against me based upon my gender, female, with respect to pay, promotion and training. After obtaining a Right-to-Sue letter from the EEOC, I joined the Dukes v. Wal-Mart sex discrimination class-action lawsuit against Wal-Mart and became a named plaintiff. I believe that since then, Sam's Club (a subsidiary of Wal-Mart) has taken a number of retaliatory actions against me. The retaliation has been ongoing, with Sam's Club taking action against me for pretextual reasons.

I have not received an annual raise in the three years since I've joined the lawsuit. Each time, I have been told at my annual review that my performance is "below expectations." I never received so low an evaluation before I joined the lawsuit. Most recently, during my annual evaluation in March 2005, I was given a score of 2.9, one tenth of a point short of the 3.0 needed to receive a raise. I believe that I am intentionally given low scores to prevent me from getting a raise as retaliation for my complaint and involvement in the lawsuit.

In December of 2003, the club's general manager refused to let me have any time off during the week after Christmas off so that I could be with my children. This was the first time during my then sixteen years at Sam's Club that I was not given that week off. I called Home Office to complain, and was told that vacation was at the manager's discretion and that they could not help me. I believe that I was denied this vacation time in retaliation for my complaint and involvement in the lawsuit.

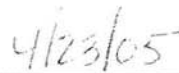

In late March/early April 2004, Wal-Mart began a sham investigation against me for sexual harassment against a male co-worker. An "independent investigator" was brought in by the company. This "investigator" used the false and malicious claims (ultimately dropped) to conduct a fishing expedition where she asked numerous coworkers in the store about me and attempted to find other reasons to discipline or reprimand me. She then made unrelated "findings" about me. On August 31, 2004, Sam's Club then gave me a "D-Day," the final step before termination in the company's progressive disciplinary system. Prior to this, I had never before been given a written or verbal warning.

Last October, there was an audit of the Sam's Store. Wal-Mart found pretextual reasons to tell me that I wasn't doing my work properly. On December 14, 2004, I was given another D-day.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Address: 595 Market Street, Suite 1400

Telephone: 415-597-7200

Cause of discrimination based on: Gender and Retaliation

Dates Discrimination Took Place: 2002-Present (Continuing Action)

Description of the events I believe to be discriminatory:

I, Christine Kwapnoski, was hired by Sam's Club originally in Missouri, in 1986. I was transferred to Sam's Club in Concord, California in 1994, and have been continuously employed there since that date. On February 7, 2002, I filed a complaint with the EEOC Oakland Local Office stating that Sam's Club discriminated against me based upon my gender, female, with respect to pay, promotion and training. After obtaining a Right-To-Sue letter from the EEOC, I joined the Dukes v. Wal-Mart sex discrimination class-action lawsuit against Wal-Mart and became a named plaintiff. I believe that since then, Sam's Club (a subsidiary of Wal-Mart) has taken a number of retaliatory actions against me.

I filed a charge on April 3, 2005 alleging that I had been retaliated against for complaining about sex discrimination. Since that time, the retaliation has continued unabated. The April 2005 charge is incorporated in this charge in its entirety. I believe Sam's Club continues to take action against me for pretextual reasons.

I repeatedly have been denied raises since I joined the lawsuit. I did not receive an annual raise until 2010, eight years after joining the lawsuit. At that time, I received a one percent raise. Despite my relatively long tenure as an Assistant Manager at Sam's Club, I am still at the bottom of the salary range for Assistant Managers at Sam's Club. Each time I was denied the annual raise, I was told at my annual review that my performance is "below expectations." As I alleged in my earlier charge, I never received so low an evaluation before I joined this lawsuit. I believe that I am intentionally given low scores to prevent me from getting a raise as retaliation for my complaint and involvement in the lawsuit.

Managers at Sam's Club have repeatedly initiated sham disciplinary proceedings against me which are all ultimately dismissed for lack of evidence. In addition to the examples in my 2005 charge, on December 19, 2008, I was written up for allegedly violating code date policies. After taking pictures of the items I allegedly put on the shelves with bad code dates which showed that those items were, in fact, current, the matter was dropped. On September 25, 2009, management opened a "Red Book" on me for allegedly removing a time clock punch for an associate. A "Red Book" is the term for an investigation done of a manager by higher-level management. If misconduct is proved, then the investigated manager will be terminated. In this case, after the investigation, the case was dropped because it was determined once again that I had done nothing to warrant discipline. Again on November 20, 2009, management opened a "Red Book" on me for allegedly discriminating against Latino co-workers. As always, these charges were dropped when no evidence was found to support the charge.

The retaliation continues. Current Club Manager Donald Taylor treats me unfairly and differently than he does other managers. For, example recently, in July 2011, when I returned from vacation, the Club Manager Donald Taylor scheduled me for eight straight days. Assistants are not normally scheduled for more than six days in a row. When I complained about the schedule, my manager refused to change it. Soon after in August 2011, the same manager scheduled me for 11 straight days. After I complained to Taylor and the regional human marketing manager of human resources, Pamela Zagrocki, I was given one day off in that 11-day span.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Sincerely,

RE: Charge of Discrimination Against Wal-Mart Stores, Request for Immediate Right to Sue

To Whom It May Concern:

Please consider this a charge of discrimination to be filed and acted upon by the EEOC. The following is my personal information:

Deborah Gunter
Post Office Box 1555
Yucca Valley CA 92286
Home: (760) 364-4846

However, I am represented by Equal Rights Advocates, The Impact Fund, and Davis, Cowell & Bowe in this matter. Please direct future communications to Noreen Farrell, Managing Attorney at Equal Rights Advocates, address below, nfarrell@equalrights.org, 415.575.2398.

I. Information Relevant to Statute of Limitations

I was a member of the class in, Dukes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., Case No. 01-cv-02252 (N.D. Cal.) ("Dukes"). I have relied upon the Dukes lawsuit since its inception and continue to rely upon the representative EEOC charge filed by former named plaintiff and class member, Stephanie Odle, as permitted by the district court, which found that Ms. Odle's charge filed on October 22, 1999, tolled the statute of limitations for all class members beginning December 26, 1998. Order Granting Leave to Amend, Dkt. 81 (Sept. 9, 2002). The district court established time limits for former class members to file charges of discrimination with the EEOC alleging conduct encompassed by the former certified class: in non-deferral states, it held that timely charges could be filed by January 27, 2012. In deferral states, the deadline was set at May 25, 2012. Order Granting in Part Plaintiffs' Motion to Extend the Statute of Limitations, Dkt. 760 (Aug. 19, 2011).

I was employed by Wal-Mart Stores for a brief period between 1993 and 1994. I was then employed by Wal-Mart between April 1996 to August 1999 at Wal-Mart stores in three California locations - Riverside, Perris, and Lake Elsinore.

I believe that I was discriminated against because of my gender (female) in promotions.

II. Discrimination in Promotion

When I was hired in April 1996 as a Photo Lab Clerk in Wal-Mart Store #2028 in Riverside, California, I had 30 years of prior retail experience.

In March 1998, I transferred to a position as Service Clerk in the Tire Lube Express Department of Store #1747 in Perris, California after the Perris Store Manager requested that I transfer there. While employed at the Perris store from March 1998 until March 1999, I performed the duties of Support Manager to the Tire Lube Express Department without the title or salary for that position. I requested training from the Tire Lube Express Manager and from the District Manager on numerous occasions. I never received the training. I requested a promotion and pay increase from the Tire Lube Express Manager, but did not receive the promotion. Instead the Tire Lube Express Manager directed me to train two male employees in the job responsibilities of the Support Manager. After receiving training from me, each male employee was promoted instead of me to the Support Manager position. After the Tire Lube Express Manager told me that I did not have sufficient training to fill the position of Support Manager (despite having trained two males eventually promoted), I again requested additional training and was denied it.

I transferred to Store #2077 in Lake Elsinore, California in March 1999. At the Lake Elsinore store, I was employed as a Cashier/Clerk in the Tire Lube Express Department. As I had done in the Perris store, I trained a male employee in the job responsibilities of Support Manager for the Tire Lube Express Department. After I trained him, the male employee was promoted to Support Manager.

I contacted the Lake Elsinore Tire Lube Express Manager and the District Manager to complain about the discriminatory treatment. In August 1999, on the day that the meeting was scheduled, the Store Manager informed me that I had been terminated.

I believe I was denied promotion into management because of my gender and that this denial was part of a broader pattern or practice of discrimination in promotion at Wal-Mart.

III. Statement of Discrimination

I believe that I, and other female employees similarly situated, have been discriminated against because of our sex in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended.

IV. Request for an Immediate Right to Sue

Please consider this a request for an immediate right to sue.

CHARGE OF DISCRIMINATION AND RETALIATION

Factual Background

I am a 41-year-old African-American woman. On September 5, 1995, I started working at Wal-Mart Store #2401 in Duarte, California. I worked as the personnel manager, a closing sales associate, and an inventory clerk. Previous to working at Wal-Mart, I had nine years of retail experience. On October 19, 2001, I was terminated from Wal-Mart in retaliation for complaining about Wal-Mart's discriminatory treatment of me.

During the six years I worked for Wal-Mart, I repeatedly expressed interest in the assistant manager training program, but was never given the opportunity to apply. I also applied twice for manager of the paper goods and chemicals department. I was never interviewed, although Wal-Mart's policy is to interview everyone who applies for a department manager position. Each time I applied, a man was hired instead of me or any other woman. I was also informed by male department managers that they earned higher salaries than female department managers.

Eventually, I was terminated after I complained that I was denied promotions and that the store manager harassed me. I believe I was denied promotions because of my sex (female) and my race (African American).

Discriminatory Denial of Promotions

In December 1997, I told the store manager, Bernie Siemen (white male), that I wanted to apply for the assistant manager training program. He informed me that he would recommend me to the district manager for the training program. However, he did not give my name to the district manager. When I asked him why, he said it was because I had been out on sick leave due to a car accident and he didn't believe that I was still interested. Mr. Siemen said he would recommend me the next time the district manager asked for names for the training program. However, Mr. Siemen was no longer a store manager as of February 1998.

In June 2000, I told the new store manager, John Kocharian (white male), that I wanted to be promoted and that I was interested in the assistant manager training program. I told him I wanted to apply for the assistant manager training program because I had been at the store for five years and wanted a new challenge. John did not reply to me. He shrugged his shoulders and walked away from me. I am not aware of any woman John recommended from our store for the assistant manager training program.

During the months after I told John I wanted to apply for the assistant manager training program, I also told various assistant store managers that I wanted to apply. I had conversations with John Moore (white male), Dwight (last name unknown) (African American male), Nofoa (last name unknown) (Samoan female), Jim Nolan (Hispanic or Asian male), and Lori White (white female). In addition to telling these assistant managers that I wanted to apply for the assistant manager training program, I also complained to them about the store manager's discriminatory treatment of me. I also wrote a letter to assistant manager Lori White (white female) expressing my desire to join the assistant manager training program. Lori suggested to me that I write a letter directly to the district manager.

In December 2000, I wrote a letter to Judy Evans, district manager, telling her I wanted to apply for the assistant manager training program. Judy wrote a letter back to me, explaining that she was no longer the district manager and that she would forward my letter to the new district manager. In February 2001, I asked the district manager's secretary, Wanda Stokes, when the new district manager would be hiring for the assistant manager training program. Wanda informed me that I should apply directly to the district manager, Dave Riggs. However, I was afraid to contact the district manager because I feared John would retaliate and decrease my hours. Despite my repeated requests to apply for the assistant manager training program, I was never allowed to apply.

I also applied for manager positions in the paper goods and chemicals department, as well as in other departments, while I worked at Wal-Mart. I applied once in October 1999 for a manager position in paper goods and chemicals and another time between January and August 2000 for a manager position in paper goods and chemicals. Although Wal-Mart's policy is to interview every applicant, I was not interviewed either time I applied. In each instance, a male candidate was selected to fill the position. The first time I applied, the store manager hired Steve (last name unknown) (white male) from another Wal-Mart store. I do not know the name of the male candidate who was hired the second time I applied. I observed during my six years at Wal-Mart that certain departments, including paper goods and chemicals, were considered by the store manager to be "men's departments."

Retaliation

In January 2001, I called 1-800-WAL-MART to complain that John, the store manager, did not interview women who applied for department manager positions in certain departments. I was informed that my complaint would be forwarded to the regional manager. I am unaware of any steps taken in response to my complaint.

After I complained about John's discriminatory treatment, I was transferred in February 2001 to the less desirable position of inventory traveler. I repeatedly told John, the store manager, and Nefoa and Lori, assistant managers, that I didn't want to be an inventory traveler. Finally, on October 19, 2001, I was terminated for "stealing time." I did not charge Wal-Mart for hours I did not work. I believe I was terminated in retaliation for calling 1-800-Wal-MART to complain about the gender discrimination at the store in which I worked, and in retaliation for contacting Judy Evans, district manager, about a promotion to the assistant manager training program.

Pattern of Sex Discrimination

I believe that the discrimination and retaliation I experienced is part of a larger and continuing pattern of sex discrimination at Wal-Mart. Few women are promoted to management positions. Women are often put in traditionally "female" departments, whereas men are placed in departments that increase their advancement opportunities. Women are discriminated against because of their sex (female) in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, and are subjected to adverse terms and conditions of employment. I make this claim on my own behalf and on behalf of all other women similarly situated.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.
